Short Story Video Adaptation

Your task is to produce a short video adaptation of a famous short story. The video should be a cohesive blend of dramatic performance and narrative storytelling.

Requirements:

1. Story Selection: Choose a famous short story suitable for visual adaptation.
2. Characterization: All characters, regardless of who plays them, must be clearly distinguishable through visual elements. This includes costuming, makeup, and props that reflect the character's role and the story's historical or thematic setting.
3. Casting:

You may perform all roles yourself, using costume changes and clever editing to distinguish between characters.

Alternatively, you may enlist friends to play supporting or main roles.

4. Audio & Narration: The final video must effectively integrate a narrative voice-over (separate from the character dialogue). This voice-over should narrate the story, highlight key plot developments, and enhance the overall storytelling experience.

Evaluation rubric

Parameter	Excellent (2 pts)	Good (1.5 pts)	Satisfactory (1 pt)	Needs Improvement (0.5 pt)	Deficient (0 pts)
1. Creativity & Visuals	Highly inventive costumes, props, and staging; visuals are engaging, original, and thoughtfully executed.	Costumes and visuals clearly represent the characters but lack significant originality or flair in execution.	Costumes and visuals are basic and functional, meeting minimum requirements but showing little creative effort.	Minimal effort was put into characterization; visuals are dull or characters are indistinct.	No attempt at characterization or visual appeal was made.
2. Content & Fidelity	Accurately captures the core plot, themes, and emotional tone of the original story; key moments are recognizable and impactful.	Follows the plot accurately, but misses some of the story's subtle themes or lacks significant emotional depth.	The basic plot is covered, but the video is generic, simplified, or misses several key story elements.	The video is difficult to connect to the source material; significant plot or thematic elements are misunderstood.	The video is irrelevant to the chosen short story or shows no understanding of the source material.
3. Speaking & Delivery	All speaking (dialogue and narration) is delivered with excellent clarity, pacing, and appropriate emotion, greatly enhancing the storytelling.	Delivery is mostly clear and understandable, but pacing or emotional expression is inconsistent at times.	Delivery is audible and understandable for the most part, but often sounds flat or unprofessional.	Delivery is frequently unclear, poorly paced, or marred by mumbling and poor volume control.	Delivery is consistently unintelligible or unlistenable.
4. Narration & Voice-Over	Voice-over is seamlessly integrated and highly effective, providing rich context and excellent command of language.	Voice-over is present and provides context, but it occasionally feels redundant or slightly disrupts the visual narrative flow.	Voice-over is basic, simply reciting the plot without adding much depth or narrative enhancement.	Voice-over is minimal, poorly recorded/edited, or fails to provide sufficient context for the visuals.	Voice-over is missing or completely unusable.
5. Grammar & Language	The language used in all elements is entirely free of errors in grammar, syntax, and vocabulary; word choice is precise and sophisticated.	Very few minor errors in grammar or vocabulary are present, but they do not impede understanding.	Several minor grammatical or language errors are noticeable, but the message remains clear.	Numerous grammatical or language errors are present, making the dialogue or narration occasionally difficult to follow.	Language errors are pervasive, rendering the dialogue or narration confusing and unprofessional.
